OFFING THE ALP.

London, Oct. 14.—12:25 p.m.—“British troops have been engaged with the enemy towards the left of the allied line in France with the result that the Germans have been pressed back slightly on their flank. The nature of the country in which the fighting has been conducted, being a minnie centre, makes rapid progress difficult.”

Paris, Oct. 14.—11:59 p.m.—“The reports received to night, which are in very general terms, indicate no important modifications in the situation.”

Petrograd, Oct. 14.—The following official communication from the general staff was issued tonight: “On the left bank of the Vistula, along the roads leading from Warsaw to Lvograd, our troops, on October 13th, successfully pressed back the German forces. One of our regiments captured two German companies. Fighting continues to the south of Przemyśl. There are no important change on the other front.”

Paris, Oct. 14.—11:55 p.m.—“Yesterday from the front between Svorik and Lomitz, the enemy began a violent artillery fire on the Serbian left wing. The Austrian fire was rapidly silenced by the Serbian artillery. Svorik is a Bosnian town on the Drina River, 50 miles northeast of Sarajevo. It is almost on the boundary line between Bosnia and Serbia. Lomitz is 10 miles northwest of Svorik, in Serbia.

Britain Not Yet Ready For Canadians

Ottawa, Oct. 14.—The following official announcement was made tonight:

“On the 10th instant a cable was received from the British government cordially thanking the government of Canada for the generous offer of a further contingent. The despatch also stated that as soon as the first contingent arrived and had been inspected, the details of the organization of the new contingent would be carefully considered by the war office and communicated to the government of Canada. These details have not yet been received, but in the meantime the department of militia is making every possible preparation for the organization and equipment of the new contingent. As soon as the war office forwards the details all necessary instructions for the immediate mobilization of the new contingent will be given.”

To Give News of Canadians

London, Oct. 15.—The war office, with the co-operation of Hon. G. H. Herley, acting high commissioner, is establishing a record office where all information relating to Canadian troops at the front will be readily at the disposal of the relatives and next of kin.

Richards & Pingle's Famous Georgia Minstrels, which came to the Claresholm Opera House on Friday Oct. 23rd promise the best show that they have ever brought here, and that is promising much, for this well known company has been coming here for years, and has never disappointed. They have always brought a show absolutely clean and meritorious.

This season they bring a large company, headed by Clarence Powell, Tom White, Benjie Sprague, Willie Viner, Arthur Wright, Tom Smith and eight other well known comedians.

The vaudeville of the 1914 season has reached unusual interest, and with the best variety. Post-Stephen has changed the list, consisting of twenty-five comedians, and they will be heard upon the principal streets at noon.

It was Once a Sign of Abolition. We consider a man a gentleman who takes off his hat to a lady. At least the act is thought to be gentlemanly polite. The origin of this custom, like so many other customs common among so-called civilized people, goes back to primitive times.

When a person was made captive his conqueror stripped him of his weapons and clothing and left him without anything he could call his own. The captive was thus made a slave, his lack of clothing being evidence of his subjugation. We need only to look at the captives of the Assyrians to see the truth of this fact. And in Isaiah 33: 2-4, we find the following statement: "And the Lord said, like as my servant Isaiah hath walked naked and barefoot three years for a sign, so shall the King of Assyria lead away the Egyptians prisoners and the Ethiopians captives, young and old, naked and barefoot."

The first step then, in tracing the origin of custom of the hat, is the removal of the clothes, being primitive and ancient peoples as a mark of subjugation. The next step is the removal of the hat, being a mark of reverence. There are all degrees of reverence, from the removal of the hat, to the removal of the most valuable parts of the clothing and the wearing of a sign of abasement.

Customs which were at that time in vogue, and which are now considered, and as a sign of respect, took their place in the customs of the world and not it on Cook and his friends.

Babe Jumps or Elms or Nine Stories

Have Been Mad

At a recent Fifth-street street man and his wife were seen to get on the ledge of a first story window.

The frenzied crowd below

thought that there might be no need to jump. The man cried that they were amusing and must jump.

The frenzied crowd

and shouted for them to make themselves properly and jump one at a time. But even while the frenzied were shouting

the instructions the crowd showed each other, looked angry and leaped. They came down straight plummet right into the net. They rebounded about fifteen feet and fell in the net again in a terrific posture, still enraged.

The frenzied men then the sidewalk. They still sat there looking at each other in redoubt. Then they were told there was no need to good fire to justify their jump. It had all been smoke from a smoldering lot of gas and other rubbish. The man and wife heard the news with expressions of wonder, thankfulness and condemnation of their skill.

Jumping of eight and nine stories without injuries have been recorded. The jumping of the jumper is what counts.

The frenzied have to be treated for all kinds. Sometimes they have to shift a few inches quickly because of the bad judgment of doctors known by the jumper. But in most cases the leap to the net saves life—New York Sun.

IRVING'S HEAD.

Why the Spot That Washington Touched Could Not Be Seen.

Among the George Henry Putnam's early recollections was a meeting with Washington Irving. He tells of it in his "Memories of My Youth." The Irving home was near Yonkers and the Putnam family occasionally visited their neighbors. Dr. Putnam remembers one Sunday afternoon when his father was busy arranging some of Mr. Irving's papers and the old gentleman told him to give him some word about his own childhood. "The mother told him some years later, when he was old enough to be interested in his family events and personages, that when he was a year old the doctor took him out in his father's carriage, saw at the corner of Broadway (present Washington) crossing by an hotel. The nurse, holding up the little boy, called out to the general that here was a boy that had been named after him and she noted that the general would be willing to give her for the naming."

"Little Washingtons" were not so plenty in 1780 as they are in later years, and the general was often ready to delay his ride for the purpose of giving a meeting to the little personage. The boy, the mother said, was sitting on the lawn with the nurse, and she saw a "famous" figure. I looked up with interest at the head that had been pointed to Washington, and then found myself surprised at Mr. Irving's word that I should not see the spot in which the general's head had rested.

"I shall be no further afterward about the matter," he said. "Why, you should soon know that Mr. Irving was a boy?"

Critical Criticism.

Mr. G. A. Story, the well known artist, once told an amusing story of a family group he painted one year for the Academy. The picture was accepted and was hung "on the line" and he arranged to escort the family to the Academy to see how it looked. They were all grouped round the picture, each already admiring his or her own portrait, when two other people drifted up to have a look.

Suddenly Mr. Story was appealed to by one of the newcomers as to his companion. "What an exceedingly nice looking lot of people!"

A Serious Fault.

"It's nice of you to let me see your prints, Mr. Lavender. Which do I consider the best? That's rather difficult. There isn't one here that really does you justice—photographic justice, I mean."

"Thank you, Miss Lydia. I would esteem it a great favor if you could indicate a preference."

"Really, I couldn't, Mr. Lavender. Each print shows the prevailing fault."

"And what fault is that, Miss Lydia?"

"They are all too lifeless!"—Claire and Plain Dealer.

A Political Situation.

"What are your views on the political situation?"

"When it comes to a political situation," replied Farmer Cornstalk, "you will have to go to St. Simola, the postmaster. He's the only fellow around here that ever had one."—Washington Star.
